Tours

❖ John M. Olin & Uris Libraries

This tour will start in Uris Library, which was built in 1891 as Cornell's first library building. This library is heavily used for its core collection of basic titles in the humanities and social sciences. It also houses a computer lab and an electronic classroom, a multi-media lab, and the AD White Library -- a historic reading room named in honor of Cornell's first president. This room, in particular, offers inspiring views of the region. The group will then move on to Olin Library, the research library for humanities and social sciences, housing more than 3 million volumes. The ground floor has been recently renovated and is home to our very successful "cyber cafe."

❖ Division of Rare & Manuscript Collections

The Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections includes 300,000 printed volumes, more than 70 million manuscripts, and another million photographs, paintings, prints, and other visual media. The collections document the history of the written word from ancient clay cuneiform tablets to an extensive representation of works by 20th-century authors and support research in fields such as medieval and Renaissance studies, the Reformation, 18th-century France and England, American history, Anglo-American literature, Icelandic history and culture, the history of science, and women's studies. Other collections focus on medicine, ornithology, witchcraft, human sexuality, the graphic arts, New York state history and agriculture, and architecture and city planning. The Division also houses the Cornell University Archives which includes records of the founding and growth of the university as well as an extensive collection documenting regional history. Take this guided tour and see an illuminated Medieval manuscript, a copy of the Gettysburg Address written in Lincoln's own hand, a first edition of Shakespeare's collected plays of 1623, as well as other rare books and documents. You may also want to visit the current exhibition on display: "Women in the Literary Marketplace: 1800-1900."

❖ Albert R. Mann Library (Agriculture, Life Sciences)

Mann Library primarily supports instruction, research, and extension activities in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, the College of Human Ecology, and the Division of Nutritional Sciences. Mann Library houses more than 750,000 volumes and has more than 100 public microcomputers. The Library recently completed Phase I of an addition and renovation project. The design of the new facility is highly praised and is well worth a quick walk to "Ag Quad" to experience this "treehouse in the woods."

❖ Johnson Graduate School of Management Library

Occupying new quarters in the beautifully renovated Sage Hall, this library features a skylit reading room, networked library carrels, and state-of-the-art electronic business information services.

❖ Martin P. Catherwood Library (Industrial and Labor Relations)

The Martin P. Catherwood Library serves the School of Industrial and Labor Relations (ILR). In 1998 a major addition was completed for the School and library. Renovation to the original facility is still in process and will complete the space transformation project for the library. The collection concentrates in areas such as collective bargaining, economic and social statistics, labor and employment law, and labor history. The library's Kheel Center for Labor-Management Documentation and Archives is a major repository for labor union archives, collective bargaining agreements, oral histories and other primary materials for research.

At the Central Avenue traffic light, go forward. At the second stop sign, take a left into the driveway of The Statler Hotel.

Parking

Conference

If you are driving and planning to park on campus, please allow yourself a few extra minutes to find a convenient place to leave your car for the day. You will need to stop by an information booth at one of the several entrances to the campus, and ask for directions to the closest visitor's lot to the conference center. You will most likely be directed to the Parking Garage, off of Campus Road, and a short walk (1.5 blocks) to the conference center. A one-day parking pass costs $6.00. For parking information see <http://www.transportation.cornell.edu/Commuter_and_Parking_Services/CandPSHome.html>. If you can't find your way from where you parked to the conference center, call 607-435-1660; the local arrangements committee will have people on hand to assist you.
