

ENY/ACRL SPRING CONFERENCE

MONDAY, MAY 21, 2001

Le Moyne College

TOMORROW'S LIBRARIANS: YOU CAN GET THERE FROM HERE

8:45 - 9:15

Registration and refreshments outside the Grewen Hall Auditorium.

9:15 - 9:30

Welcome remarks

Barbara Norelli, ENY/ACRL President

Kurt Geisinger, Academic Vice President,

Le Moyne College

9:30 - 10:30

Althea Jenkins, Executive Director, ACRL

What Profession Is This And Why Are

We Here Anyway?"

The emerging technologies and the growth of information are creating incredible new possibilities and opportunities to the field of librarianship. From traditional libraries to a variety of dot.coms, the ability to provide information wherever, whenever and however has become big business. The popular focus on the information society has generated discussion in our profession about who we are - are we information professionals or librarians. In this session, Dr. Althea Jenkins will provide an overview on issues related to questions about what profession we are and what titles we wear.

10:30 - 10:50

Morning Break

10:50 - 11:50

Values for 21st Century Libraries

Michael Gorman, Dean of Library Services, California State University, Fresno

Mr. Gorman will discuss the nature of values and their usefulness in daily working life. He will stress the importance of continuity in the approach to librarianship, even as processes change radically. He will define eight core library values and illustrate their practical use in changing library environments.

11:50 - 1:15

Lunch, Business Meeting, Announcements, and Celebration of ENY/ACRL's 25th Anniversary!

Vegetarian options will be available at the buffet lunch. Please contact Inga Barnello regarding special dietary needs.

1:15 - 2:40

Different Paths, Different Perspectives, One

Profession: A Panel Discussion

Our panelists will respond to the earlier presentations by Althea Jenkins and Michael Gorman and address issues such as appropriate training of future colleagues, recruiting qualified professionals, the role of library schools and professional organizations in the profession, and professional development paths throughout one's career. Questions and exchange from the audience will be encouraged.

Moderator:

Suzu Szasz Palmer, ENY/ACRL VicePresident

Panelists:

Linda Marion, Doctoral Candidate Drexel University & ACRL student paper award winner

Susan Markowitz, Director of Library Human Resources, Cornell University

Judith Robinson, Chair, Department of Library & Information Studies, School of Information Studies, State University of New York at Buffalo

John Thomas, Assistant Librarian, SUNY Canton

Kizer Walker, MLS student, Syracuse University School of Information Studies

Jim Walsh, Regional Library Representative for New England and Eastern Canada, CIS/Lexis-Nexis

2:40 - 3:00

Afternoon Break

3:00 – 3:45

Here Today, Here Tomorrow... Education for the Evolving Profession

Raymond F. von Dran, Dean, Syracuse University School of Information Studies

Dr. von Dran will discuss ways graduate programs in library science and information studies are facing the challenges of preparing their graduates for a changing world and a variety of traditional and new library settings.
